

ABSTRACT

A system and method for conducting a fantasy sports draft. Participants in a fantasy draft are gathered in a single physical location for the conduct of the draft. Team information and player selections are input into a computerized system, which displays team rosters and other desired information on display monitors so that participants can observe the draft process.